

AWS training program in Bangkok, August

Interested in learning more about water stewardship? AWS will offer 2 and 3-day training programs in Bangkok the week of the 15th of August (date & venue TBC). The programs are intended for people implementing water stewardship at a site or working with implementers.

Advanced Water Stewardship Training (Day 1 & 2)

The AWS Advanced Training Program is a two-day course for people implementing water stewardship in their operations or wanting to provide accredited consulting, auditing or training services. The Program takes an in-depth look at the six steps involved in achieving good water stewardship by working through a case study relevant to participants.

Who should attend?

- ❖ Major water users, the water and wastewater industry, retailers and supply chain leaders, catchment managers.
- ❖ People interested in providing specialist services to water using sites as accredited auditors, consultants or trainers
- ❖ Staff from water and natural resources management agencies interested in working with sites to promote or implement good water stewardship

Specialist Water Stewardship Training (Day 3)

The Specialist Training Program is a one-day course for people seeking accreditation as AWS accredited auditors, consultants and trainers. It will review the case study examined in the Advanced Training Program from an auditor's perspective, examine the requirements of the AWS Accreditation Standard, the AWS Self Verification Standard and the AWS Certification Standard and review the value proposition for water stewardship compliance and the business case for water stewardship.

Who should attend?

- ❖ People interested in providing specialist services to water using sites as accredited auditors, consultants or trainers.
- ❖ Potential implementers and promoters of the water stewardship standard seeking a deeper understanding of verification requirements.
